Honorable Stansfield Turner,
Admiral, U.S. Navy
Director, Central Intelligence Agency
Washington, D.C. 20505

Dear Stan:

The battle over strategic intelligence structure and functions seems to be at peak intensity. You are certainly making waves, as befits a sailor, and I hope you are making progress!

I wish I had an opportunity to counsel with you and your staff with a view to supporting from outside of government the legitimate goals of coordinated central intelligence. I have consulted your staff several times in the past month to see if you ever have any time for sympathetic old hands, so far with no response. Hence I am writing to say that if you can think of any way in which I can be helpful to the intelligence community, please let me know.

Cordially,

Ray S. Cline
Executive Director of Studies
